Role play ice cream stand

You will need:

A shallow box
Paints
coloured paper
Glue stick
Felt tips
Scissors
Cord/ ribbon or string
Foil
Card

Have fun making and playing with this ice cream role play activity.

Take a shallow box and cut off about a quarter off the lid. This is a job for a grown up.

Use something round to draw some small circles. This is where you can display your ice cream later

Ask a grown up to cut out the circles as this is a bit tricky. Then decorate your box. We painted ours white and added some pink sugar paper.

Make a hole at the front at each side and thread through some cord/ ribbon or string. This will be able to loop over your neck to hold the tray at the right height. Knot in securely and if you like add a bit of tape.

Fill with ice creams and Elsecar by the Sea rock.

If you like, cover card circles with foil and cut out to make role play coins.

Fill your refreshment stand with Elsecar by the Sea
rock and ice creams.

Draw around a circle (a dinner plate is a good size) and fold and cut in half.
Decorate with criss-cross lines

Roll into a cone and stick with sellotape.
Roll a ball of left over paper and push into the cone

Spread glue on the top of the crunched up paper inside the cone. Scrunch up some tissue paper and stick on top.

Add some sauce by sticking a splat shaped bit of tissue paper on top.

Cut some thin strips of coloured paper and stick them diagonally on one end of a piece of A4 paper. Cut off any bits that overhang the edge.

Turn over and roll into a tube shape, starting at the end of the paper with no stripes on. Glue the end strip to hold in place.

Finish off by rolling some cellophane around your tube.

Stick in place with sellotape at each end.
