

To inspire your journey, here are a few tips to discover a new way of looking.

REFLECTIONS

Reflections are everywhere, including water, shiny metal and glass. Does the reflection change what you see?

Look out for surprising reflections in nature: can you see a puddle holding the sky in the ground?

an object often reveals a hidden world which can go unnoticed. Perhaps a flower, an insect or a tiny part of a large object... can your friends and family guess what it is?

SHADOWS

Shadows created by the sun or a torch are great to play with - try creating your own fantastical shadow creatures. Remember, a simple background makes the shadows easy to see.

TEXTURES

Look for different kinds of surfaces and patterns, perhaps in nature or a wall. Usually, when light comes in from an angle, the texture is more visible. Try black and white photos: by removing the colour, the textures and shapes are easier to see.

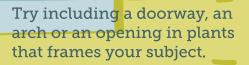

Framing is a way of drawing attention to the main subject of your photo by blocking other parts of the image with something in the scene.

SELFIES

Can you find new ways to take your selfie? Perhaps a wobbly reflection in a puddle or on a curved shiny surface. Try creating a selfie shadow or show just a part of your face peeking through leaves.

Do your family and friends recognise you?

Remember, sharing photos is a lovely way to gain inspiration, build confidence and learn new skills.

Share your photos at:

@ntwentworthcastlegardens
@barnsleymuseums

5 So things to do before you're

Turn your search for images into a scavenger hunt and complete 50 Things to Do Before You're 11³/₄, Activity No. 30. What will you capture with your camera?

To explore more activities, visit: www.nationaltrust.org.uk/wentworth-castle-gardens www.nationaltrust.org.uk/50-things-to-do

BARNSLEY MUSEUMS

Working together to create a place for everyone.